c. Abstract:

The Southeast Florida Regional Travel Characteristics Study (Travel 2000) provided the needed observed travel information for developing planning tools for the three-county region of Southeast Florida. Data collection efforts began in December 1998 and were completed in September 1999. Travel logs were collected for 5,100 households -- all travel by all residents for one day. Approximately 10,000 bus riders were surveyed. Visitors were surveyed at 79 hotels. Trucking information was gathered from 848 commercial establishments using trucks. Workers were surveyed at seven major employment areas in the three counties.

d. Additional Information:

This study is not just a household travel survey – it also includes a transit on-board survey, a visitor’s survey (where data was collected at hotels/motels), a trucking survey, and a business survey. These are all rectangularized in the same file under the “hhid” column, which is not representative of the 5,100 households interviewed.
